AstroNotes

Our moon is quite something special. A new series of measurements of oxygen isotopes provides increasing evidence that our moon formed from the collision of the Earth with another large, planet-sized astronomical body, around 4.5 billion years ago.

—Ron Olowin

Lasallian Reflections

For the week of June 16.

Professor Diana Wu 1936–2014

The Saint Mary's community lost a treasured professor, scholar and friend with the death of Diana Ting Wu on May 22. A memorial service was held in the Saint Mary's Chapel on Sunday for Wu, who was the first woman and first person of color to lead the Business Administration Department, which she chaired from 1986 to 1989. We recognize the contributions Professor Wu made to the College and to her discipline.

Class of 2014 Shatters Giving Record

Not only were they the largest graduating class in Saint Mary's history at 764, but the class of 2014 gave more money as seniors than all previous years, with more than 62 percent participating in the Senior Gift Campaign, raising over $7,240 and creating 473 new college donors.

Korean-Style Business

Later this month, MBA students head to Seoul, South Korea for an immersion trip to sharpen their understanding of how business is done in Asia, through lectures and visits to Korean companies like LG, General Motors Korea, Samsung and Daewoo Shipbuilding and Marine Engineering.
